PREFACE

These indexes have a long history. They were first made up for the use of the compiler and the editors of the Journal after volume 12 had appeared in 1966. An extension up to volume 16 was made available informally to members of Studiorum Novi Testamenti Societas, under whose auspices the journal is published. Further extensions were made at volume 23 and now at volume 31.

In the interval vast improvements have been made in computer indexing techniques and in facilities for layout and better quality printing. The original layout was devised for 14in.(35cm.)-wide computer output. To make use of the latest indexing techniques it would have been necessary to retype all of the data for the first twenty-three volumes and this was not possible in view of the time factor alone. The result is a compromise, with a fair amount of subjective manipulation by the compiler and some attempt has been made to rationalise the work of different data typists at the various periods of compilation. It is my hope that readers of the journal will find that the layout answers their queries with a good measure of success. Special thanks are due to the staff of the Edinburgh Regional Computing Centre, in particular to Messrs J. Murison and N. Stroud. Thanks are also due to the Staff of Cambridge University Press, and particularly to Miss Anne Burkinshaw, Assistant Journals Controller, for professional advice and assistance.

One or two points should be noted.

1. References to the Bulletin are in the form 'B III/6' where the Roman figure indicates the number of the Bulletin and the figure following the slash the page on which the article begins.
2. References to 'New Testament Studies' are in the form '13-261' where the first number indicates the volume and the second the page on which the article begins.
3. Standard contractions are used and should all be intelligible. 'Rev.' is used both for 'Revelation' and for 'Review'. In the latter case, the word 'of' follows the contraction. Most reviews are listed only under the name of the reviewer.
4. It has not been possible to take account of the fact that e.g. 'John'='St John'='Fourth Gospel' or 'Apocalypse'='Revelation',&c. &c.
5. German umlaut has been represented by a following 'e'.
6. While the bulk of entries in both indexes contain the titles as printed in the Journal, this is not guaranteed, and in some cases, especially of duplicated entries or long sub-titles, curtailment has been made.

The compiler will be glad to have a note of any errors and/or omissions which are detected by users. These should be sent direct to Dr Ian A. Moir, 56b Kirk Brae, Edinburgh, EH16 6HU, Scotland, Great Britain/ U. K.
